America's Dad or America's Dud? I personally was jonesing for former astronaut and current Senator Mark Kelly of Arizona to serve as Harris' Veep, so I'm not particularly happy with the choice of jolly 'warrior', Governor Tim Walz of Minnesota. Although he served 24 years in the National Guard Reserves, he never actually saw combat overseas. Then the Trump/Vance campaign resurrected video of Walz stating that he 'carried a gun in battle' while campaigning for gun control measures in one of his Congressional or Gubernatorial races. Bitchy little weirdo J D Vance only served four years in the Marines as a journalist, including six months in Iraq not under fire, so naturally he jumped on this pretty quickly. Hey Kamala -- it's not too late to reconsider the studly, seemingly-flawless Sen. Kelly -- remember Sargent Shriver? Below are responses from Threads regulars to this kerfuffle.

Republicans are really going to try and disparage Tim Walz's 25 years of service in the Army while their nominee had his rich daddy get one of his doctor tenants to write a letter to the draft board claiming little Donnie couldn't serve because of bone spurs? That's the play?

This isn't a Marine.

This is an "Ex" Marine who could never be trusted by his fellows. This is the guy who takes the last cup of coffee on the midwatch and doesn't make more. This is the guy who steals other Marines skivvies out of the ship's laundry. This is the guy who's always late for watch. This is the guy who talks shit about everyone in the squad behind their backs and never to their faces. This is the guy who hits on his subordinate's wife. This is the phantom shitter, right here.

Vance was a USMC Lance Corporal or E3. He did 1 4yr enlistment and used his GI Bill to go to Yale. Tim Walz was a 24yr Command SgtMaj (E-9) which is highest enlisted rank. I'm not going to disparage anyone's service record but I will make an observation. Notice he says "were you ever in war" and "combat zone" - not "were you ever in combat". Because JD Vance was never in actual combat either. You can also be in a war without being in combat. Anybody active duty supporting a war effort is in war. I was in Desert Storm in a war zone but not in combat. I was in a combat zone 11 times in Afghanistan, but not actually in war as I was a civilian.

FICTION VERSUS FACTS

TIM WALZ RECORD

FICTION	FACTS
Tim Walz retired because he knew he was going to deploy to Iraq.	Bullshit. Tim submitted his retirement request to the U.S. Army National Guard months prior to notification of his unit's deployment. His unit was fully sourced (staffed), and his request was approved. He retired in May 2005.
Tim Walz is using a rank he didn't attain, and that's Stolen Valor.	Bullshit, and the Minnesota National Guard says it's bullshit. It is entirely accurate to describe Tim as having been a Command Sergeant Major - the rank under which he served - and the Minnesota National Guard has emphasized in public statements that he can be referred to as such.

<https://baynews9.com/fl/tampa/news/2024/08/07/decision-2024-election-latest-updates-trump-harris-vance-walz>

--By Joseph Konig

Michigan

UPDATED 9:10 PM ET Aug. 07, 2024 PUBLISHED 4:04 PM ET Aug. 07, 2024

Vance, a U.S. Marine veteran and the Republican Party's nominee for vice president, referenced years-old and long-disputed criticisms of Walz, who served in the National Guard for 24 years, by some soldiers who served alongside him that the then 41-year-old left the service months before their battalion was deployed to Iraq. Walz has said he left the service to pursue a run for Congress in 2006, winning his first of six terms in the House.

"What really bothers me about Tim Walz, as a Marine who served his country in uniform, when the United States Marine Corps, when the United States of America asked me to go to Iraq, to serve my country, I did it," Vance said at a press conference in Shelby Township, Mich. "When Tim Walz was asked by his country to go to Iraq, you know what he did? He dropped out of the Army and allowed his unit to go without him, a fact that he's been criticized for aggressively by a lot of the people that he served with."

"I think it's shameful to prepare your unit to go to Iraq, to make a promise that you're going to follow through and then to drop out right before you actually have to go," Vance added.

Walz, whose official biographies have long said he retired as a command sergeant major and billed him as "the highest-ranking enlisted service member ever to serve in Congress," enlisted in the Nebraska National Guard at 17 and served in the Minnesota National Guard in the 1990s and early 2000s. After the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks, Walz was deployed to Italy as part of Operation Enduring Freedom from Aug. 2003 to April 2004.

He served as a high-ranking, non-commissioned officer in a field artillery regiment — damaging his ear and hearing to the point of necessitating surgery, according to medical records obtained by Minnesota Public Radio — and reached the rank of command sergeant major. However, he retired one rank lower as a master sergeant "for benefit purposes because he did not complete additional coursework at the U.S. Army Sergeants Major Academy," Army Lt. Col. Kristen Augé, a spokesperson for the Minnesota National Guard, told Spectrum News in a statement.

In 2018, a spokesperson for the Minnesota National Guard told MPR that it was legitimate for Walz to say he served as a command sergeant major even if he retired at a lower rank.

"I know that there are certainly folks that did far more than I did. I know that," Walz told MPR in 2018. "I willingly say that I got far more out of the military than they got out of me, from the GI Bill to leadership opportunities to everything else."

Several of Walz's fellow soldiers have come forward with accusations that he left the service after finding out his battalion would be deployed to Iraq. Retired Command Sgt. Maj. Tom Behrends, who served with Walz, has publicized the accusations since at least 2018, calling the governor "a traitor" in an interview with the New York Post on Tuesday. Behrends campaigned with and donated $2,500 to Walz's Republican opponent in 2022.

"I don't know if Tom just disagrees with my politics or whatever, but my record speaks for itself and my accomplishments in uniform speak for itself, and there's many people in this crowd, too, that I served with," Walz told the Minneapolis' Star Tribune in 2022. "It's just unfortunate."

Other soldiers who served with Walz have argued there was nothing to suggest Walz's departure from the service warrants suspicion. Retired Command Sgt. Maj. Joseph Eustice told the Star Tribune in 2022 that Walz "was a great soldier" and that "when he chose to leave, he had every right to leave." He speculated that soldiers who claimed otherwise were misinformed or even harbored grudges for being passed over for promotions.

According to a 2007 National Guard article, Walz's battalion received "alert orders" they were set to be deployed in Iraq in July 2005, after he had already retired. They ended up deploying in March 2006 and stayed through June 2007, which the National Guard noted was "the longest continuous deployment of any military unit during Operation Iraqi Freedom" at the time. CNN first resurfaced the 2007 article in a report on Wednesday.

The Harris campaign defended Walz's service record and pointed to his record working on veterans issues in Congress, saying through a spokesperson "as Vice President of the United States he will continue to be a relentless champion for our veterans and military families."

For his part, Vance served in the Marines for four years out of high school, the majority spent as a combat correspondent — or "public affairs marine," as he described it in his 2016 memoir "Hillbilly Elegy." In his memoir, Vance describes his time in the service as "largely uneventful" and writes he "was lucky to escape any real fighting" during a six month deployment to Iraq.

But on Wednesday, Vance said he was bothered by Walz's "stolen valor garbage." He responded specifically to Walz's comments, shared by the Harris campaign on Tuesday, calling for gun control measures because "weapons of war, that I carried in war, is the only place those weapons are out."

“Well, I wonder, Tim Walz, when were you ever in war? When was this? What was this weapon that you carried into war, given that you abandoned your unit right before they went to Iraq, and he has not spent a day in a combat zone,” Vance said. “What bothers me about Tim Walz is the stolen valor garbage. Do not pretend to be something that you're not.”

“I'd be ashamed if I was him and I lied about my military service like he did,” Vance added.

Notably, Vance's running mate, former President Donald Trump, never served in the military despite coming of age when the draft was still in place amid the height of the Vietnam War. In 1968, as he graduated from college, Trump was diagnosed with bone spurs and received a medical deferment from the draft.

Spectrum News' David Mendez contributed to this report.

Senator JD Vance of Ohio also claimed Gov. Tim Walz of Minnesota had exaggerated his service record. Mr. Walz said a decision to retire and run for Congress came months before any notice of deployment.

The first seven paragraphs of the New York Times article are devoted to recounting Vance's false claims — without once even hinting at their falsity. The article portrays this as a problem for Walz instead of for Vance — and thus makes it so.
